The seventh annual Race for All Races celebrates diversity and raises money for IPS scholarships

If you believe in diversity, get in line

[Indianapolis, IN] - More than 20,000 people of Asian descent call Indianapolis home according to the US Census bureau. To celebrate the growing cultural diversity in our community, Asian American Alliance, Inc. (AAAI) will host the seventh annual Race for All Races on Saturday, September 12th at the Military Park in downtown Indianapolis.

The Race for All Races is a family-friendly 5K Run/Walk and a 1-Mile Family Walk that brings people of all different races and backgrounds together. The opening ceremony kicks off at 8:45 a.m. with Daniel Miller, WISH-TV weekend Daybreak co-anchor, serving as the Master of Ceremony. A portion of the proceeds from the Race for All Races will fund IPS scholarships. AAAI has awarded more than 100 scholarships totaling nearly $60,000 to deserving students in the past six years. Register for the Race online at www.tuxbro.com

The Race for All Races is made possible by the generosity of these sponsors: American Family Insurance, Anthem, Bingham McHale, BioStorage Technologies, Lumina Foundation, Telamon, Barnes & Thornburg, National City/PNC, Vesta Pharma, Indianapolis Local Public Improvement Bond Bank, Marketpath, Row Printing, WISH-TV Channel 8, Radio One/WTLC/Hot 96.3, SAsian One, Bodkin Associates, Finish Line and United Water.

For more information, please contact Asian American Alliance, Inc. at 317-627-2010. AAAI is a local, non-profit organization with a mission of inspiring Asian Americans to serve and lead.
